Credit Hour Explanation

Program credit hour requirements		A) Number of credit hours in current program (Quarter credit hours)	B) Calculated result for 2/3rds of current (Semester credit hours)	C) Number of credit hours required for proposed program (Semester credit hours)	D) Change in credit hours
Total minimum credit hours required for completion of program		75	50.0	50	0.0
Required credit hours offered by the unit	Minimum	75	50.0	38	12.0
	Maximum	75	50.0	50	0.0
Required credit hours offered outside of the unit	Minimum	0	0.0	0	0.0
	Maximum	0	0.0	12	12.0

Explain any change in credit hours if the difference is more than 4 semester credit hours between the values listed in columns B and C for any row in the above table

The History Department has expanded the possible number of credit hours that students can take outside the unit in order to offer greater flexibility to our graduate students to train in an interdisciplinary fashion, to learn from other fields and methodologies, and to develop skills essential to research (such as language training, statistical skills, etc.)

Program Learning Goals

Note: these are required for all undergraduate degree programs and majors now, and will be required for all graduate and professional degree programs in 2012. Nonetheless, all programs are encouraged to complete these now.

Assessment

Assessment plan includes student learning goals, how those goals are evaluated, and how the information collected is used to improve student learning. An assessment plan is required for undergraduate majors and degrees. Graduate and professional degree programs are encouraged to complete this now, but will not be required to do so until 2012.

Is this a degree program (undergraduate, graduate, or professional) or major proposal? Yes

Does the degree program or major have an assessment plan on file with the university Office of Academic Affairs? No

DIRECT MEASURES (means of assessment that measure performance directly, are authentic and minimize mitigating or intervening factors)

Standardized tests

- Local comprehensive or proficiency examinations

Classroom assignments

- Pre- and post-testing
- Other classroom assessment methods (e.g., writing assignments, oral presentations, oral exams)

Evaluation of a body of work produced by the student

- Portfolio evaluation of student work
- Capstone course reports, papers, or presentations

Direct assessment methods specifically applicable to graduate programs

- Candidacy exams
- Research proposals written and grants awarded
- Thesis/dissertation oral defense and/or other oral presentation
- Thesis/dissertation (written document)
- Publications

INDIRECT MEASURES (means of assessment that are related to direct measures but are steps removed from those measures)

Surveys and Interviews

- Student survey
- Alumni survey
- Student evaluation of instruction
- Student interviews or focus groups

Additional types of indirect evidence

- Job or post-baccalaureate education placement
- Student or alumni honors/recognition achieved
- Peer review of program
- External program review
- Curriculum or syllabus review
- Grade review
- Outreach participation
- Comparison or benchmarking

USE OF DATA (how the program uses or will use the evaluation data to make evidence-based improvements to the program periodically)

- Meet with students directly to discuss their performance
- Analyze and discuss trends with the unit's faculty
- Analyze and report to college/school
- Make improvements in curricular requirements (e.g., add, subtract courses)
- Make improvements in course content
- Make improvements in course delivery and learning activities within courses
- Make improvements in learning facilities, laboratories, and/or equipment
- Periodically confirm that current curriculum and courses are facilitating student attainment of program goals
- Benchmark against best programs in the field

Program Specializations/Sub-Plans

If you do not specify a program specialization/sub-plan it will be assumed you are submitting this program for all program specializations/sub-plans.

Dear Elliot,

The Disciplinary Advisory Committee for Curriculum from the Division of Arts and Humanities within the College of Arts and Sciences met, reviewed, and unanimously approved the proposal for a semester version of the MA and PhD in History from the Department of History, with an ultimate unanimous vote on June 8, 2011. The committee focused on re-arrangement of the information and clarity of the proposal.

The Master of Arts in History is moving forward in semester conversion with re-envisioned status. Previously the MA required only one core course, History 7900 (796), however under semesters the MA will require not only this course, but also History 7905, Pedagogy & Professional Development. Under quarters, the MA allowed 10 credit hours (equivalent of two 5 credit hour courses) outside the Department of History. Under semesters, the department is allowing 12 credit hours (equivalent of four 3 credit hour courses) outside the Department of History so that students may engage in methodological practices that will aid in their research agendas. The rest of the degree remains essentially the same. The degree under quarters required 45 credit hours, and under semesters it will require 30. Thus, these are the major reasons for the re-envisioned status of the MA in History.

The PhD in History is moving forward in semester conversion with minimal change. Previously the PhD in History allowed no coursework outside the unit to count toward the program; under semesters, the department is allowing 12 credit hours (equivalent of four 3 credit hour courses) outside the Department of History so that students may engage in interdisciplinary practices that will aid in their research and preparation for dissertation writing. The rest of the degree remains essentially the same. The degree under quarters required 75 credit hours beyond the MA, and under semesters it will require 50 beyond the MA.

We are sending these graduate programs forward for review and approval in the next stage of curricular review at the Graduate School and Council on Academic Affairs. The courses that are specific to all of the programs are listed under History. If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to call or email me at 292-5727 or williams.1415@osu.edu.

Thank you for your consideration of these proposals,

Dear Valarie,

The History Department is pleased to submit the enclosed materials for semester conversion for the following graduate program plans. This letter and attached materials focus on our graduate offerings. A separate letter will be used for undergraduate offerings.

MA in History
PhD in History

The History Department approached Semester Conversion as a not-to-be-missed opportunity to reconfigure the History Major, Minor, and GE offerings in ways that would enhance the learning opportunities of Ohio State students. We approached conversion as a chance to take stock of what we do in the classroom, to revise and rethink certain components of our curriculum, and perhaps to reshape the heart of what we do as educators. To borrow from an image painted in 2009 by Interim Executive Dean Joan Leitzel, we approached conversion as the possibility to erase and wash clean the chalkboard on which our current curriculum was written and revised over many past decades, and to draw on a clean slate a new curriculum for the 21st century. We approached this work with the understanding that it might prove true that much of the new curriculum would look very much like the old curriculum, but that we might also decide to make crucial changes at critical junctures or even to engage in substantial redesign. In either case, we were determined to move forward with pedagogical practices and designs that we collectively and consciously have chosen rather than simply inherited. At risk of sounding hyperbolic, we believed that we had the opportunity to leave a lasting imprint on higher education for generations to come. Thus, we invested an enormous collective effort in this project.

The Process

We began deliberations in Autumn 2009, when the Department engaged in an extensive online discussion/brainstorming of our teaching practices and patterns. We began with two first-principles questions. 1) What do we want our graduate students to learn from our classes and what do students need to gain (for instance, knowledge, analytical thinking, other skills, links to employment) from history classes in the 21st century? 2) How best should we reach these goals (in terms of class size/structure, types of courses, nature of assignments, MA, Candidacy, and PhD requirements, etc.)?

In Winter Quarter 2010, a Semester Conversion Task Force (SCTF)—appointed by the chair, and including representatives from multiple fields and ranks within the department, as well as representatives from our regional campus faculty—met more than ten times to discuss/analyze the findings/opinions/ideas generated by the online discussion and to formulate a way forward for making decisions about the graduate program. (Much of the work of the SCTF focused on undergraduate education, which we decided to tackle first and then move onto graduate education with our undergraduate programs in place—see the Chair’s undergraduate letter.)

Ideas from the SCTF, along with other points of discussion, were then taken to an all-day faculty retreat in early September 2010 to discuss the future structures and patterns of the History Graduate Program.

During the Autumn of 2010 and Winter of 2011, the Graduate Chair and Semester Conversion Coordinator gathered comparative data on the structure of graduate education and graduate teaching at benchmark institutions, as well as input from graduate students in the History Department, to complement the ideas and decisions generated during the retreat.

In Winter of 2011, the Graduate Chair, the Semester Conversion Coordinator, and the Department Chair utilized the data from the online discussion, ideas from the SCTF, data and ideas from the retreat, views of the Graduate students, and comparative information to formulate working plans for the Graduate program under semesters. These plans were then circulated to the Chair’s Advisory Committee for comment and revision.

The revised document was then sent to the Graduate Studies committee, which deliberated and revised the document over three meetings in Spring 2011. The final document was brought to the full Department for a vote at the April 27, 2011 Department meeting. The new graduate program for MA and PhD was passed unanimously.

In addition, during Summer and Autumn 2010 and Winter of 2011, Department faculty then went to work on deciding which graduate courses to keep under semesters, which to eliminate, which courses to reconfigure, and what new courses to add in order best to fulfill this new curriculum. The final course numbering and decisions were completed at the end of Winter Quarter 2011. The Department added a handful of new courses at the 7000 level to fill gaps in our graduate curriculum with essential courses, and a series of new 5000-level Special Topics courses that would be available to both advanced undergraduates and graduate students.

We utilized the recommended 3 to 2 conversion ratio. The faculty agreed that with only a few exceptions (e.g. individual study, thesis writing) all of the department's graduate courses under semesters would typically be 3 semester course hours. Almost all of our current courses are 5 credit hours. Using the 3 to 2 conversion rules, only minimal changes were necessary for them.

Changes to the Graduate Curriculum

Changes to the History MA Program

Required Courses: Under Semesters, the History Department will add one required course: History 7905, "Pedagogy & Professional Development" (3 credit hours) (in addition to the already existing requirement for History Q786/S7900 ("Colloquium in the Philosophy of History, Historiography, and the Historian's Skills I"). This new requirement, which had been an optional course under quarters, is designed to ensure that all MA students receive 1) proper pedagogical training to teach classes at Ohio State and in their future careers and 2) to ensure that all students learn grant-writing and other essential professional skills early in their graduate career.

History 7905 will include pedagogical training that is directly tied to the work in the classroom that these first-time GTAs are doing. It would also have a component that examines teaching through technology and distance learning, as well as training in how to lead discussion sections, how to grade, how to build a syllabus, how to lecture, etc. The course will also include the development of such professional development skills as locating funding sources, components of grant writing, building a resume, conference presentations, writing book reviews, career building strategies, and other professional development topics.

GTAs would take the course in their first year in order to aid them in transitioning to University-level teaching. Fellows might take the course either in their first or second year.

Research Seminars: Under Quarters, MA students were required to complete either one 800-level sequence and a Master's thesis or two 800-level sequences. Under Semesters, MA students will be required to complete one 8000-level research course for the MA. Students are encouraged to take more than the one required 8000-level course, and there is the option to complete an MA thesis (as outlined in the MA Program Requirements document). The change in requirements is designed to improve time to degree for MA and PhD students without compromising the quality of the MA and PhD programs.

MA Thesis: The History Department currently offers MA students both a thesis and non-thesis track to completing the MA. Under semesters we will keep both options for the MA but we will lean more heavily to the non-thesis option (which involves coursework, the presentation of a portfolio of written work, and an oral MA exam). We propose that students entering with a BA generally take a non-thesis option in order to facilitate completing the program while they still enjoy guaranteed funding from the department and in order to ensure a timely completion of the PhD. Students/Advisors might consider the MA thesis option if the student and/or advisor believe it would be in the best interest of the student to have the learning experience of writing a full thesis.

Changes to the PhD Requirements

In general, we are making very few changes to the PhD program.

We are adding one new required course: History 7910 “Prospectus and Professional Development” (3 ch), which students must take prior to Candidacy. The course would offer a structured environment in which students would research and write their dissertation proposals (including reading secondary materials, investigating primary source options, and working on methodological and comparative work) and learn how to write a prospectus. The course will also review some of the professional development skills (such as grant writing, conference paper presentation, building a c.v., and other skills) that were introduced in History 7905 “Pedagogy and Professional Development.”

I endorse all History Department undergraduate program proposals and request approval for conversion from quarters to semesters.

Sincerely,

Peter L. Hahn
Professor and Chair

Transition Policy

History PhD

The Department of History will ensure that graduate students will not find their progress impeded or carry any undue burden as a result of semester conversion. Advising of students during the transition will take place individually in order to tailor the program to the needs of the individual student. Advising will be carried out by faculty, by our Graduate Studies Chair, and by our Graduate Studies Coordinator.

Pre-semester PhD requirements will continue to apply to students who matriculate under quarters, although such students will be given the option to follow the semester requirements should they wish.

Since there are only minimal changes to the PhD requirements, and we have carried out a course-to-course direct conversion the transition is generally uncomplicated. Thus, students who follow the quarter requirements under semesters will be required:

- To take 15 courses in total (which is the number of 5-credit hour courses needed under quarters to reach the 75-credit-hour quarter requirement for the PhD). These 15 courses might include some 5-credit hour courses from Quarters and some 3-credit hour courses from Semesters. History will count a 5-credit-hour quarter course and a 3-credit-hour semester course as equivalent for these counting purposes.
- To take History 7900, unless taken as History 786 under quarters and/or unless already taken for the MA.
- For the purposes of transition, one Q800-level research sequence will be considered equivalent to one 8000-level course. Students who begin their PhD under quarters are required to complete one 8000-level course/800-level sequence. Since directly equivalent courses exist under semesters, students will face no obstacles in the transition.
- Students may satisfy the current quarter requirement for 700-level courses with 700-level courses under quarters or 7000-level courses under semesters.
- Students will not be required to take History 7905 (“Pedagogy and Professional Development”), however—as was the case under quarters—they will be encouraged to do so.
- Students who begin their PhD under quarters will not be required to take History 7910 (“Prospectus Writing and Professional Development”), however they will be encouraged to do so.

Requirements for PhD in History

Note: For a complete list of all Graduate-level Semester Course Offerings see above.

I. Overview:

- The PhD in History consists of 50 Semester Credit Hours beyond the MA
- The PhD is generally speaking divided into two parts: Candidacy Exams and the Dissertation.
- Purpose: The purpose of the Ph.D. program is to train superior students in the skills necessary to enable them to add substantially to public and scholarly knowledge and understanding of history. Students will be expected to acquire competence in their chosen fields and to develop professional expertise in research and writing, making use of both traditional and newer methods of historical inquiry. To this end, students are required to master the basic tools of research in their respective fields, such as language, paleography or quantitative skills.
- Both to broaden their horizons as historians and to prepare them for careers other than teaching, students are encouraged to augment their training with the techniques of inquiry and analysis of other academic disciplines. The Ph.D. Program at OSU should not only qualify a person to perform successfully in the academic world, but should be of considerable value for careers in business, government and other areas where the historian's knowledge and skills in research and communications are useful. Thus, students will have the opportunity to build into their programs correlative training outside the Department.
- A student may be admitted directly to the Ph.D. program upon completion of a baccalaureate degree, with the favorable recommendation of the Graduate Studies Committee and upon the consent of a faculty member to serve as the student's advisor.

II. Candidacy Exams

The Candidacy examination in the Department of History serves two central purposes:

1. General examinations probe the breadth and depth of a graduate student's knowledge of the literature and/or narrative of the fields of study. It certifies ability to teach courses in these fields of study and evaluates the student's ability to frame research interests within the context of the existing literature.
2. The general examination also serves as a moment of articulation of a student's level of professionalism in written and oral form. It is part of a process of socialization and development in which the student’s professional demeanor and sophistication can be observed. Successful completion of the general examination indicates to the faculty the student’s readiness to become a member of the historical profession beyond the Department.

3. It is anticipated that students who enter with a BA will complete their candidacy exams by the end of their third year. It is anticipated that students entering with an MA will complete their candidacy exams by the end of their second year

Candidacy-Exam Requirements:

1. Students entering the program with a BA must take 50 semester credit hours prior to candidacy (this includes the 30 hours towards the MA; i.e. 20 credit hours after the MA). Students entering the PhD program with an MA from another institution must take 20 hours prior to candidacy.
2. One 7000-level readings course in third field of specialization (3ch) [does not include history 7193 “Independent Studies”.]
3. For students entering with an MA: two more 7000-level readings courses in first and second fields of specialization for Candidacy Exams (6 ch). [Students who complete an MA at Ohio State will complete this requirement as part of the MA]

The following courses fulfill the 7000-level course requirement. Other courses may be utilized and/or added with Advisor Approval.

5. Proficiency in second foreign language, as determined by field.
6. With Advisor permission, students may enroll in a total of three graduate courses outside the history department that will be counted toward PhD credit.
Maximum 12 credit hours.
7. Successful completion of Dissertation thesis and oral defense.

Sample Plan for History PhD

Each student will move through the requirements of the PhD in their own individual way, based upon their field, preparation, language or other professional skill training necessary, and advice of Advisor. The following offers 1) one possible trajectory under semesters for a student who enters the program with a BA and completes the MA at Ohio State and 2) a possible trajectory for a student who enters the PhD program with a MA in History from another institution. Other students might take more time as needed.

1. Plan for Student who Completes MA at Ohio State (ie student enters Ohio State with a BA).
